NEW ALLIED GAINS IN EGYPT

NUMBER OF PRISONERS INCREASING

CABLING from Cairo last night, Reuter's Correspondent said: "Our forces made further advance near the coast. The number of prisoners now more than doubles those captured in the first two days of the offensive."

Meanwhile the heaviest artillery barrage ever seen in Africa is being laid down by the Allies, and under cover of this and with tank and air support, the infantry move forward to attack the strong Axis defences, which must be reduced before the armoured divisions can operate in full strength.

CAIRO, Sunday.—Reuter's Correspondent here says: — "General Montgomery is wearing down the Axis defences by sheer weight of shells, while the infantry clear minefields and mop up strongholds in readiness for the inevitable armoured clash. Meantime, his tanks are held in readiness to go forward and exploit any large gap in the enemy's defences. On the Allied side the tanks are being used in a completely new style in the present desert fighting.

"Our forces are up against extensive Axis defences in depth, with strong points behind minefields and with the Axis armour sheltering mostly behind very powerful anti-tank gun screens, thoroughly organised during the recent lull. Previously desert plans decreed the sending in of tanks to cause a break-through for the infantry, but to-day General Montgomery is laying down the greatest artillery barrage ever known in the Middle East, and is then sending in picked infantry, supported by an almost non-stop air bombardment of the Axis gun positions and supply lines.

"It is not likely that there will be any spectacular news from the front line at this stage, as the enemy's defences are extremely strong, and the job of reducing them will be a fairly long one.

"Several low, flat-topped ridges, in the battle area have been converted by the Axis into strong-points, with field and anti-tank guns covering the most likely tank approaches. These will have to be put out of action before our armour can crash through in full strength."

ATTACK AGAIN

Reuter's Special Correspondent, west of El Alamein, cabling on Saturday, said:—"The famous infantry units which went into action again last night, after a full week's operations, were still engaged in close and bitter fighting this morning. The supporting concentrations of artillery fire continued all night long. The infantry, who started out from a salient, are up against a very tough proposition where the enemy has good cover. The prisoners they have already taken are mostly Germans, and are old enemies of our men from Greece. So far a number of their guns, which made a sporadic reply to our artillery, have been knocked out in counter-battery work. Operations are continuing against stiff opposition.

"A terrific artillery bombardment during the night was the signal for the further advance by our infantry units. The infantry reached their first objectives some time ago, and back from the fighting line a lorry brought the first batch of prisoners. The infantry units that are attacking once again have been in constant and successful action day and night since the beginning of the offensive, and repelled four separate counter-attacks in one day in their last positions. The Germans opposing them now are tougher and better-trained personnel than those met earlier."

HEAVY AIR RAIDS

The joint Middle-East communiqué states: "During Friday night our troops made a further advance, and took a number of German prisoners. Counter-attacks against our new positions were beaten off with loss to the enemy.

"Yesterday a suspected Panzer headquarters was very successfully attacked by our fighters, which destroyed or damaged vehicles, armoured cars, tanks and tents. An encampment in the Matruh area was attacked by long-range fighters. Large tents were fired, and vehicles and a wireless station were strafed. A railway train was also set ablaze and the engine destroyed. Casualties were inflicted on troops in the Matruh Dock area. Long-range fighters shot up the road between Sollum and Sidi Barrani, where encampments and vehicles, some carrying petrol, were destroyed.

2,000 PRISONERS

LONDON, Sunday. — To-day's Italian communiqué says:—"Violent fighting started again in the northern sector of the Egyptian front, where the enemy launched new attacks, with strong support of armoured units. The British attack was then stemmed by an energetic counter-attack and was broken up. A number of tanks were destroyed and about 200 prisoners were taken. The total number of prisoners taken in the present battle has reached 2,000.

"German and Italian operations with dive-bombers and assault 'planes caused considerable losses to the enemy. They continuously attacked concentrations of troops and material and repeatedly attacked centres in the enemy's rear. In air duels German fighters shot down seven aircraft and forced another 'plane to land inside our lines, the crew of which were taken prisoner. Another 'plane was hit by a.a. artillery and crashed in flames."—Reuter.

ROMMEL LEADS

LONDON, Sunday. — Marshal Rommel at noon yesterday personally led a counter-thrust of German and Italian tank units and some infantry regiments, says the German News Agency to-night. The British, resuming their large-scale attacks on the eighth day of the Alexander offensive, after the most violent artillery barrage, thrust on a narrow sector in the north of the front, with concentrated infantry forces, in the direction of Sidi Abdel Rahman. After grim fighting, lasting for hours, their break-in succeeded. Strong British armoured forces and another infantry division were then hurled into the battle to take tactical advantage of the local success and widen it. But a thin chain of German hedgehog positions was able to prevent the break through until at 12 noon Rommel's counter-trust started. It met the British spearhead with full violence.

"Within the German defence system a tank battle developed, lasting several hours. The enemy was numerically superior, and the Axis troops could only oppose the superiority of their leadership, the character of their soldiers and the quality of their weapons. The first encounter of the armoured forces ended with a clear victory for the Axis. In chaotic and disorderly withdrawal, the British, on the evening of the eighth day, had to abandon the whole of the territory gained. In addition to a great number of destroyed tanks and others which were set ablaze or immobilised, no fewer than eighteen undamaged British tanks were left. The crews surrendered.

"To-day—the ninth day of the British offensive—German tank forces again went into attack, effectively supported by fighter bombers and battle 'planes."—(Reuter.)

TO PREVENT INFANTILE PARALYSIS

PERSONS susceptible to acute anterior poliomyelitis (commonly known as infantile paralysis)—children and young adults—should avoid places of public assembly, says Dr. C. J. McSweeney, Medical Superintendent of Cork Street Fever Hospital, in an article on this disease in the "Journal of the Medical Association of Eire."

Visits to cinemas, parties, etc., and travel in public conveyances should be forbidden. Food should be guarded from fly contamination. All contacts should be observed for 20 days, and persons showing suspicious symptoms should be rigidly isolated. Vaccinations and operations on the nose and throat, unless urgently required, should be postponed.

As the incidence in rural communities tends to be much higher than in towns, rural schools should be closed when the disease is prevalent. In urban areas closing of schools is very rarely necessary. When a case occurs in a boarding school, dispersal of the pupils to their homes should be discountenanced. Where the disease is prevalent, gargling and nose spraying are useless.

MODE OF INFECTION

For long, he says, it had been taught that the virus entered the human body by the nasal mucosa, but recent research strongly indicates the gastro-intestinal tract as the way of entry. No finality has been reached about the mode of infection, but it is significant that it is a disease of the warm weather, and continues as long as flies are prevalent. In urban areas the majority of the victims are young children, but in the country older children and young adults are more commonly affected, and the age limits may be from three months to 45 years.

The illness generally begins with headache, irritability, drowsiness, neck rigidity, and fever (100-103 degrees F.). Paralysis may show as early as the second day, or any day up to the tenth. Mild cases may show improvement in a week. The case fatality varies from 2 per cent. to 30 per cent., and most of the fatal cases are under one year, or over 15 years.

THREE NEW CASES

Following a confirmed outbreak of infantile paralysis in the Ballindare area, Cullaune National School has been closed. No such decision has yet been made in Claremorris, where another case was confirmed some time ago. Some parents have, however, kept their children from school as a precautionary measure.

Two cases of infantile paralysis have been reported at Redhills, Co. Cavan. Carnivals, entertainments, and dances in the county have been cancelled as a precaution.

CHRISTIAN MEN'S INSTITUTE

TWO THINGS NEEDFUL

Play and be sociable was the advice given by the Archbishop of Dublin (the Most Rev. Dr. Barton), who spoke on Saturday night at the Jubilee of the Christian Men's Institute, Dun Laoghaire. He said that if people, both young and old, did not play and have that social feeling, they could not hope to attain to any sphere in spiritual, intellectual, social or physical culture, which are the four foundations of Christianity.

"Here in this Institute," he went on, "you have a place where you can come and mix together in a Christian brotherhood. I am glad you are beginning to realise that God built this Institute as an instrument for the promotion of His work here on earth. Use your minds now; there has been no better scope for thinking in the world than to-day, and the future of the world depends on what you are thinking at present."

The Rev. Canon Chamberlain said he hoped that the citizens of Dun Laoghaire and the neighbourhood would come and make good use of the building which had been erected by the late William McComas, some fifty years ago, and endeavour to carry out the objects of the founder.

Mr. E. T. Godkin, Trustee, who was a member of the Institute when it started in 1892; the Rev. S. J. Parke and the Rev. S. J. Johnston also spoke.

NORFOLK COLLEGE

Miss E. G. Tapley, Headmistress of Norfolk College, Rathgar road, at the annual distribution of prizes, held in Rathmines Parochial Hall, Belgrave square, on Saturday, said that the school year for 1941-1942 had been most successful. There was not a single failure in any of the examinations for which the pupils were prepared. The three pupils who entered for the Intermediate Certificate Examination received honours, and all the pupils passed in the Religious Knowledge Examination. The physical training results for the year had also been successful.

The Rev. Canon Parkinson Hill was in the chair. After the distribution of prizes the pupils of the college entertained those present with two operettas.

CHRISTMAS DINNER PROSPECTS

Will the Christmas dinner this year include turkey? How will the problem of cooking it in Dublin be met?

An Irish Times reporter learned yesterday that the majority of gas users believe it will be impossible to cook a turkey on the volume of gas at present available, and many have resigned themselves to what appears inevitable — a Christmas dinner without turkey.

However, even in the darkest situation there is hope, and, while the Dublin Gas Company has not yet considered the possibilities—having to operate too close to supplies to be able to express an opinion on what the position is likely to be in the middle of next month—there are some grounds for anticipating that a special allowance of gas will be made available either before or on Christmas Day by way of an increase in pressure or an all-day supply.

"PEACE WITH JUSTICE"

The Pope, in a broadcast message to Portugal on Saturday, commemorating the 25th anniversary of the apparition of Our Lady of Fatima, exhorted the people to pray, "so that the dark period through which the world is passing may soon end, and that peace may shine again on humanity—a peace with justice."—(Reuter.)

GERMAN RAID ON CANTERBURY

NINE 'PLANES LOST

THE Germans lost nearly one-fifth of the raiding force—nine out of about 50 — sent to bomb Canterbury, and scattered parts of south-east England, on Saturday, their biggest recent daylight raid, says the Press Association. Four more German 'planes were destroyed over Britain after dark, when bombs again were dropped in the south-east.

London had a short night alert, the first since September 7.

In the daylight attack the Germans used fighter-bombers and fighters. At least six were destroyed by British fighters and the others by ground defences. Many more were damaged. Several would-be raiders were caught out at sea by patrolling fighters, six being shot down during a thirty-minute battle. Those who got by crossed the coast under cloud cover and in face of terrific anti-aircraft fire.

Over Canterbury they swooped low in four waves, consisting of up to fifteen 'planes, in the fading light of evening, as the streets were thronged with shoppers. It was a "lightning" raid. Bombs wrecked houses and shops before people could reach the shelters. Ten persons are known to have been killed—including the conductress and eight passengers in a 'bus—and others were injured, while the driver of another 'bus was killed.

One man told a reporter: "They bombed a working class area. It was all so terribly sudden. The streets were full of shoppers, it being market day."

GERMAN REPORT

BERLIN, Sunday. — The German communiqué states:—

"A limited number of British 'planes flew in daylight over occupied western territories, under the cover of cloud, over the German Bight and over the north-western frontier of the Reich. Damage was caused in several localities by bombs. Several 'planes were shot down.

"Yesterday and last night the Luftwaffe carried out against Great Britain reprisal attacks. In several raids on the town of Canterbury, the bombs, partly dropped from a low level, caused considerable damage by explosions and fires. Other bombers attacked military targets at several localities in the south-east of the island, including Dover."—(Reuter.)

Canterbury on Sunday, says a Press Association Special Correspondent, was hard at work tidying her streets, which overnight had become strewn with rubble and shattered glass. Outside the Public Library a long, silent group of people, waited all day anxiously scanning the casualty list for names of relatives. The death-roll, however, is not particularly heavy.

Nearly every house in one street was wrecked, and six persons were killed, including two men who had been repairing a roof.

There were four deaths at a large garage, which received a direct hit, destroying many cars and, it is thought, burying the manager.

Two men, pinned by wreckage, when a bomb destroyed houses, killing five people, were discovered after being trapped for some hours. Rescuers freed them after ninety minutes' desperate work.

BRITISH RAIDS

Spitfires, on offensive patrol, attacked canal barges in Holland on Sunday morning, and Bostons attacked an airfield and a factory in Northern France in the afternoon, according to the British Air Ministry. One bomber and one fighter are missing from these operations.

A Royal Air Force squadron attacked a goods train near Gravelines, between Calais and Dunkirk, stated the Vichy Radio yesterday.—(Reuter.)

"British intruder aircraft were active over Northern France during Saturday night," states the Air Ministry News Service. "One of them, who shot up a train, saw the engine explode."

A BETTER IRELAND

The United Council of Christian Churches, through the Dublin members of its Executive Committee, have been considering plans for the betterment of the community in Eire, both in the economic and moral sphere. They consider that if an advance is to be made towards a better Ireland we must not wait until the present world war is over, but take steps forthwith, when the minds of men are more open to influence, than they are likely to be in the post-war times.

A conference has been arranged for to-morrow, at 7.15 p.m., in the H.C.M.S. Hall, Molesworth street, Dublin. As the future of the country lies largely in the hands of the younger generation, it is hoped that many young people will attend, as well as others.

AMBULANCE COMPETITIONS

The following are the results of the annual competitions for ambulance divisions of the St. John Ambulance Brigade in Ireland, which were held on Saturday last:—Dublin Challenge Cup—1, City of Dublin team; 2—tie—Jacob's and L.M.S. (Dublin); 3, Smith and Pearson's. Invalid Transport—1, Fertiliser Manufacturers' Division; 2, Broadstone; 3, L.M.S. (Dublin). Novices' Cup—1, St. Laurence; 2, Hamnond Lane; 3, Glenageary.

Sir John Lumsden, Commissioner of the Brigade, thanked those who had assisted in holding the competitions, and also the members of the nine teams which had come from Northern Ireland to compete. The teams were entertained to lunch by the Commissioner and officers of the Brigade.

U.S. ELECTIONS TO-MORROW

WASHINGTON, Sunday. — The United States Congressional elections are on Tuesday, and present indications are that 20,000,000 fewer citizens will vote than in 1940. The poll will find 32 States selecting Senators, and the entire 48 States will take part in the election of the 435 members of the House of Representatives. On the same day 33 States will elect Governors.—(Reuter.)

AIRCRAFT CARRIER SUNK

WASHINGTON, Saturday. — The U.S. Navy Department disclosed to-day that the American aircraft carrier previously reported as badly damaged off Santa Cruz Island had had subsequently sunk. The great majority of the ship's company was saved. The carrier, the fourth lost by America, was sunk by bombers and torpedo aircraft while an attempt was being made to tow her to safety.—(Reuter.)

HEAVY BATTLE IN SOLOMONS

JAPANESE SHIPS HIT

LONDON, Sunday.—Paris Radio reported to-day that the Japanese had captured "the largest airfield on Guadalcanal Island." It gave Tokyo messages as the source of this report. The island's only important aerodrome is the Henderson airfield held by United States Marines, and the Paris report should be treated with every reserve, says Reuter.

German Radio reported to-day that a new Japanese fleet, including transports, had been sighted 300 miles from Guadalcanal steaming towards the island. During the past 24 hours, it said, the Japanese had increased pressure on the Henderson airfield.

The United States Navy Department announced to-night that the Americans at Guadalcanal have struck back at the Japanese.

The communiqué said: "South Pacific. On October 29 United States aircraft continued their attacks on enemy positions on Guadalcanal Island. During minor ground operations two enemy 75 MM guns were captured west of the Matanikau River. During the late evening a dive-bomber attacked two enemy destroyers near Tassafaronga. No hits were scored, but the destroyers were driven westwards toward the Russel Islands.

SEVEN SHIPS HIT

WASHINGTON, Sunday — The Navy Department announces:—Two Japanese aircraft carriers damaged, two battleships bombed, and three cruisers damaged in a battle near the Stewart Islands, in the Solomons, which cost the U.S. Navy one aircraft carrier and one destroyer.

The following is the text of the communiqué:—"The first detailed report of the naval and air battle fought on October 26th to the east of the Stewart Islands was received by the C.-in-C. of the U.S. Fleet this afternoon. In this report the following damage to the enemy was detailed:—Four to six heavy bomb hits on an aircraft carrier, two medium bomb hits on another aircraft carrier, two heavy bomb hits on a battleship of the Kongo class, one heavy bomb hit on a second battleship, five medium bomb hits on a cruiser of the Tikuma class, torpedo and bomb hits on a heavy cruiser, two torpedo hits on another heavy cruiser. Reports indicate the definite destruction of more than 100 aircraft and the probable destruction of about 50 others."

MAKING AGRICULTURE PROSPEROUS

MR. W. T. COSGRAVE'S POLICY

Mr. W. T. Cosgrave, T.D., visited Cork on Saturday, and attended a largely-attended delegate meeting of Fine Gael representatives of the South-East Cork constituency. The proceedings were private, and were concerned primarily with matters of agricultural policy. Professor T. O'Donoghue, M.A. presided. In the course of his address, Mr. Cosgrave disposed of criticisms of the lines of policy explained in Cork a few weeks ago by Dr. O'Higgins and himself.

Agricultural policy as set out by the Fine Gael Party, he said, was based on increasing the values and extending the volume of agricultural production. One of the earliest efforts to be made in that connection was to reduce costs and ensure that there would be scope for profitable expansion. Most of the criticisms had requested particular concessions or advantages, but separate sectional interests were not as important as the general prosperity of the industry. The present comparative prosperity of agriculture was entirely due to war prices and increasing prices of stock, but the agricultural industry as a whole was not in a healthy productive condition. Pigs were never fewer. The dairying branch would need to be subsidised. Poultry and eggs output was only a fraction of what they should be. Fertilisers were sadly needed. Political effort must be directed towards enabling more profitable production. An export market was indispensable, and the country had many competitors. The policy they were ready to put before the electorate was based on these proposals.

The conference, after some discussion, accepted the lines of policy placed before it by Mr. Cosgrave.

CLARE FARMERS PREPARING

The Clare Farmers' Party, at a meeting in Ennis Town Hall (Mr. Michael Brassil, chairman) deferred the selection of their candidates for the parliamentary election to a convention to be held on 8th December. Mr. William Clune, of Woodenbridge, Co. Wicklow, attended, and stated that, as a native of Clare and a representative farmer, he was being pressed to offer himself for election as T.D. He was willing to pay his own election expenses and lodge his own deposit. The meeting expressed no opinion on Mr. Clune's offer, but the general feeling was that, while Mr. Thomas Burke, T.D., should again be the nominee of the Clare Farmers' Party, there should be a second candidate. Mr. Burke, it was stated, had voted against increasing the salaries of deputies from £360 to £480 a year, and had offered to pay the extra £120 a year into the funds of the Clare Farmers' Party. The offer had been declined. In future, however, it was to be a condition that any candidate elected T.D. under the auspices of the Clare Farmers' Party would have to contribute that £120 annually to the funds.

ALLIED SHIPPING LOSSES

BIG GERMAN CLAIMS

LONDON, Sunday. — A special announcement from Herr Hitler's headquarters on Saturday claimed that U-boats operating near the Canary Islands sunk 14 British ships totalling 101,000 tons on Friday night. The German communiqué states: During yesterday a group of U-boats succeeded in getting into contact with an enemy convoy off the Canary Islands sailing northwards towards England. At dusk U-boats attacked the strongly-protected convoy from all directions until dawn, and destroyed 14 loaded ships with valuable raw materials from Africa totalling 101,000 tons. In the fighting against the English-American transport fleet the German Navy sank 111 ships totalling 720,575 tons during the month of October. Ten more ships were damaged by torpedo hits.

"The rest of the convoy attacked off the Canary Islands on the night of October 30 was again the quarry of our U-boats, which sank four more ships, aggregating 30,131 tons, from scattered units on Saturday, thus bringing up the total sinkings from this convoy alone to eighteen ships, aggregating 131,131 tons.

"The English Navy during the same period lost one destroyer, two escort vessels, seven motor torpedo boats and, by air attacks, twelve landing barges. Our submarines have destroyed 41 ships, representing over a quarter of a million tons of Anglo-American shipping."

An earlier announcement stated that German U-boats sank eight ships, totalling 52,518 tons, east of Cape Agulhas, the most southerly headland of Africa and in the Cape waters.—Reuter.

LOST THEIR RAG

STUDENTS' FREE FIGHT

When some of the students who were taking part in the U.C.D. "rag" on Saturday morning attempted to enter Trinity College, the T.C.D. students barred their way, and a free fight ensued which held up the traffic in College Green and disrupted the whole activity of that part of the city. The hostilities were growing more and more serious, until the intervention of a large force of Guards restored the peace. In Lincoln place, at the back gate of Trinity College, a similar "battle" raged. Sods of earth, sticks, stones and tins were being exchanged over the wall of the college, and it looked more and more as though somebody would be seriously injured until a large party of Guards with batons drawn charged the attackers and removed them to a safe distance down Nassau street, where they taunted the police with cries of "Flatfeet!"

The "rag" parade suffered from the contemporary restrictions. The vehicles employed, which were fewer in number than usual, all were horse-drawn, but there was no lack of humour or inventiveness in the ideas. College comments on modern stage and screen successes, such as "The Man Who Came to Dinner," "The Strings are False" and "Gone with the Wind," were very much in evidence, while the Phœnix Park "Dears" and the Comic-Cuts Deputation to the Minister formed the most popular features of the procession.

DEPARTMENT'S NEW OFFICES

One of the few air-raid shelters in Eire to be air-conditioned is the shelter which occupies the basement floor of the new Department of Industry and Commerce building in Kildare street, Dublin. It has been specially strengthened for its purpose, its walls and ceiling having a three-foot width of concrete. Originally it was intended for normal use, but the plans for this section of the building were changed, and the window spaces were built up with stone-facings, backed by concrete. Though the architect's plans for the building and the work carried out by the contractor provided for two lifts, by the time the Board of Works placed the order for the lifts difficulties had arisen about their export from Britain, and so far it has been impossible to obtain them.

Another interesting feature of the building is its fine bronze doors, weighing over one and a half tons, and made from bronze plate cast entirely in the foundry of a firm of Dublin brass workers. These doors set off the fine stonework of the building, and make an impressive entrance.

IRISH STUDENTS IN CHINA

News has reached the Jesuit Fathers in Ireland that four Irish students of their seminary in Hong Kong have safely reached Shanghai and have enrolled at the famous Siccawei University. The four students are Timothy Doody, Matthew Corbally and Joseph McAspey, all of Dublin, and John Wood, of Clonmel.

Siccawei University was founded seventy years ago by French Jesuit Fathers originally as a meteorological station and as an observatory.

POLICE RAIDS IN BELFAST

After a bomb explosion on Friday night in Belfast, in which ten persons, including two policemen, were wounded, police searched many houses in different parts of the city during the week-end. Upwards of 70 persons were taken for questioning, and some of these were later released.

BRITAIN'S RECORD OUTPUT

NOT YET AT PEAK

MR. HERBERT MORRISON, British Home Secretary and Minister of Home Security, yesterday gave the following facts of Britain's war effort:—

Output of warlike stores—practically everything but ships and aircraft—rose in September by 14 per cent., and the output of weight of aircraft 18 per cent., compared with August.

Eighty per cent. of British war production is shipped overseas, and so is every fighting man for whom space can be found.

Shipbuilding workers have an output twice as great per head as those of any other country.

The British Navy has brought safely to port 199 out of every 200 ships in the convoys. It has 600 warships and auxiliaries constantly at sea, and has destroyed, captured or damaged more than 125 Axis warships and over 6,000,000 tons of shipping.

Britain, said Mr. Morrison, has not yet reached her peak.

Mr. Morrison, who was speaking at Cardiff, praising the work of the "tough, dour men of the Clyde and the Tyne," said:—"A little healthy rivalry between friends and allies is a fine thing. If we set one another high standards as competitors we will all the sooner share in a common achievement as conquerors. And Britain has not yet reached her peak."

The British Navy was fighting over an area of two and three-quarter million square miles in the Atlantic alone. No less than a quarter of a million men man the escort ships.

"The Navy regularly patrolled over 80,000 miles of trade routes—three and a half times round the world.

THE INITIATIVE

"We are hearing a good deal of the initiative which the enemy has held, and still, in a measure, holds on land," said Mr. Morrison. "Let us think, too, of the initiative which we will increasingly hold by virtue of our power to range the seven seas and strike where we decide.

"Japan's blitzkreig in the Pacific—based on sea and air power combined—was the writing on the wall for our enemies, because it was a precursor and a portent of what British and American sea and air power will achieve when fully equipped and provided with the necessary land cover at its key points.

"Only by looking at world maps can we fully understand the meaning of the tremendous struggle now going on in Libya. For the Axis, it is part of an attempt to seize Suez, one of the great key points of world—land, sea, and air—power. Their declared design is to match, by a conquest of the Middle East, the Japanese conquest of Burma and the Dutch Empire, and so to join hands across the Indian Ocean, threatening our life-lines in that hemisphere and opening up a new avenue of attack on Russia.

"Our hope, on the other hand, is to throw Rommel out of Africa.

"That is what is at stake along the Egyptian front, limited though its mileage is. There is no theatre of war anywhere in the world upon which hang greater strategical issues. And sea-air power is both the condition and the prize of a victory in Egypt for the United Nations."

CLOSER TO WAR

TURKISH PRESIDENT'S STATEMENT

Dangers from abroad were continually growing and the country faced the possibility of attack "from an unknown direction," said President Ineunu, opening a new session of the Turkish Parliament.

Stressing Parliament's duty to take all necessary measures, the President declared that in 1943 the war would assume "still harsher and more cruel forms," and that at the present stage there was not the slightest sign to allow of hope of a settlement. "Never since its outbreak has our country been nearer the brink of the world war."

In the coming year," said the President, "we will pursue our national policy, both internally and externally, in a straightforward manner, and will defend this policy energetically. Remaining faithful to our pacts and friendships, and taking every precaution not to be drawn into some entanglement against any country, we will follow our national policy. We know that all belligerents highly appreciate the advantage gained by this our straightforward policy."—(Reuter.)

SOME CUTS IN PETROL ALLOWANCES

Allowances for petrol for the month of November for private motor vehicles, hearses, small public service vehicles and trade plates will be made on the same basis as for the month of October with the following exceptions:—

The maximum allowance for private cars owned by clergymen in areas other than the County Boroughs of Dublin, Cork, Limerick, Waterford and Galway—

Cars not exceeding 10 h.p., 8 gallons.

Cars exceeding 10 h.p. and not exceeding 16 h.p., 10 gallons.

Cars exceeding 16 h.p., 12 gallons.

In the boroughs mentioned the allowance will be half the maximum indicated above. The issue of allowances to clergymen in the larger provincial towns is under consideration.

The policy adopted since 1st August in respect of vehicles not exceeding 30 cwts. unladen weight will be applied to all other commercial vehicles. Petrol allowances will not be granted to such vehicles engaged in certain services, including retail grocery and drapery, which are set out in an advertisement appearing in another column.

On permitted commercial goods vehicles on essential services, in respect of wnich permits will be continued, there will be a general reduction, but special consideration will be given in respect of the bulk haulage of grain and sugar beet.

Persons requiring petrol for industrial purposes for December, January and February next should make application not later than 16th November.

The Minister for Industry and Commerce will receive in the near future a petition from sand and heavy haulage contractors on the question of petrol supplies. The hauliers' ration has been reduced, and they feel that it has gone below the level at which they could operate economically.

SEVERAL STREETS RECAPTURED

STALINGRAD ATTACKS WEAKENING

VICHY radio said last night that, according to reports reaching Stockholm, the Russians had recaptured several streets in the northern part of Stalingrad, and Reuter's Correspondent stated that German attacks on the city defences during the week-end petered out and that generally the assault was losing force.

Last night's Soviet communiqué said that in the factory area and in the south of the city the Russians had captured German positions.

North-west of the city the relief army is consolidating its position and is stated to be situated favourably for a resumption of the advance.

In the Caucasus the Russians fell back at two points, and Tuapse is believed to be in some danger.

MOSCOW, Sunday.—Reuter's correspondent here says:—"The punch is going out of the German attacks at Stalingrad. General Rodimtsev's guards are taking full advantage of this favourable turn, and in some sectors have improved their positions. The third big German onslaught since the middle of last month petered out over the week-end, leaving only smashed hulks of German tanks and a litter of German dead to show that it had ever been. The latest clash was round one of Stalingrad's factory "forts," which have proved more resistant than the Maginot line to the Germans. The Germans rushed forward several times one infantry regiment strong, and supported by tanks. The result was the same as in scores of previous attacks—wrecked tanks (in this case two), and fresh heaps of German dead. Whereas on Thursday the Germans were still attacking one and a half divisions strong, with a division of tanks, on Friday and Saturday they used battalions and regiments. The force of the German artillery bombardments is also waning, partly due to increased Soviet air activity.

"The Germans are continuing their systematic plan to raze the city to the ground. Even when the ground fighting slackens off there is no air lull. Between 50 and 100 bombers are over the city daily, and, despite the probable loss of up to 1,000 'planes in the past three months, the Germans still often make as many as 2,000 individual flights a day. The Volga crossings are under a non-stop bombardment from the air, and are even being fired at from the top storeys of German-occupied buildings inside the town.

GERMAN LOSSES

"Colonel Vasilyev, Soviet military expert, says that the Germans are losing an average of 4,000 men in dead and wounded daily in the battle of Stalingrad, 'and are as far from achieving their aim as they were before.

"North and south of the city there has been no spectacular gain. To-day's despatches report consolidation and reconnaissance, with some sharp clashes. Three desperate German attempts for a foothold on a fortified hill in the southern sector were baffled, the Germans losing 300 men.

THE CAUCASUS

"News from the Caucasus fronts is still grave, although the Russians are doing well north-east of Tuapse, the Black Sea port. Nalchik, where the Germans are staging another big thrust for oil, seems to be the main danger spot, and Red Star's man at the front describes the situation there as 'rather tense.' To-day's Soviet communiqué reports stubborn defensive battles, in which 300 Germans were killed. The Germans are rushing up more and more men, and have a better network of roads at their command than exists in the Soviet rear. Soviet retirements in two sectors were reported here to-day. East of Novorossisk the Germans have launched a new series of attacks, which have so far all been held."

Timoshenko's troops north-west of Stalingrad have forged ahead considerably, said Moscow Radio yesterday. A day or two ago Red Army units, in occupying an important position, inflicted on the Germans losses totalling about 7,000 officers and men, 57 tanks, 100 guns, 70 machine-guns and 36 'planes.—(Press Association.)

GERMAN CLAIMS

Vichy Radio claimed that the Germans are now nearing Tuapse, and forecast that a direct attack on this port will begin shortly.

To-day's German communiqué states:—In the Tuapse sector there was a successful breach in several enemy positions. Counter-attacks were repulsed. Off Tuapse an enemy 13,000-ton merchantman was sunk by bomb hits. West of the Terek our troops, effectively supported by the Luftwaffe, overran the enemy positions and threw him far back, crossing several rivers. Two armoured trains were destroyed by the Luftwaffe. On the Caspian Sea nine medium-sized transports and freight ships, including four tankers, were set on fire or sunk. South of Stalingrad the enemy resumed counter-attacks without any success.—(Reuter.)

SOVIET COMMUNIQUE

MOSCOW, Sunday, — To-night's Soviet communiqué said:—"In the Stalingrad area Soviet troops repulsed enemy attacks. In some sectors our troops counter-attacked and forged ahead.

"This morning in the factory district, after artillery and air preparation, a regiment of German infantry started an offensive. In fighting which lasted three hours our troops threw back the enemy to their initial positions. Heavy losses were inflicted on the enemy in this engagement. Our men occupied several enemy strong points. In the southern sector of the city's defences one of our units broke through the first line of the German defences."

The supplement also said that north-west of Stalingrad Soviet troops consolidated their positions and carried out reconnaissance activities.

"In the area of Nalchik heavy defensive fighting took place. The German troops succeeded in driving a wedge into our positions, and, after protracted heavy fighting, one unit retreated to new positions.

"North-east of Tuapse a Soviet unit captured a strategically important height. About 300 of the enemy were killed.

"During the week ending 31st October 202 German aircraft were destroyed. Our losses in the same period were 128 aircraft."—(Reuter.)

COMPANY LAW IN EIRE

All companies should be compelled by law to publish a far more accurate, clear and comprehensive annual report than they do at present, suggested the Rev. Dr. Lucey, Maynooth College, lecturing last night, under the Cork Corporation University Extension Lecture Scheme in Cork on "Control of Company Profits." Dr. Lucey suggested a chartered auditing corporation with power to determine standard profit rates for the different categories of business, the conduct of a social audit of annual reports with a view to expose excess profit rates, and that the sharing of excess profits with their employés should be made compulsory in industry.

Winawar's Surprise

WINAWAR, a four years old colt by Winalot, owned by an Englishman, Mr. R. H. Gordon, trained by Captain D. Rogers and ridden by R. Hardwidge, one of the outsiders in a field of twenty-eight, scored an easy win in the Irish Cesarewitch at the Curragh on Saturday. Of the fancied candidates, Point d'Atout made the best showing, but when he had got the best of it with Mountain Loch and Submarine half a furlong from home he was tackled by Winawar, who was staying on much the better passing the winning post. Mr. Gordon has had the winner in training at the Curragh for three seasons; the colt's only other score was in a maiden two years old race at Naas, and he could have been bought cheaply before Saturday's race. He now proved himself a genuine stayer over the stiff Curragh course of two miles in a race run at a spanking pace, in which class was strongly represented.

Mr. H. M. Hartigan had two successes as trainer, winning the Scurry Plate with Poolfix and the Beresford Stakes with Umidzadeh, Joe Canty riding both. Mr. R. More O'Ferrall and E. M. Quirke also scored doubles, winning the Ballysax Plate with Safari and the Kildare Plate with Hubbub. Sweet Peach stayed on the best of the six runners for the Irish Plate, and gained an easy victory; and in a rousing finish for the Curragh Plate Royal Concert prevailed by a head over Loanore. # Shield Goes To Cork

CORK ........ 2 ST. JAMES'S GATE 1

CORK UNITED defeated St. James's Gate at The Mardyke yesterday by 2 goals to 1, after a rather disappointing game, in which neither side impressed. The Gate were out of luck; their misfortunes began when they lost the services of Clarke, who was injured early on, and for the rest of the game they had to rely on four forwards, Cahill dropping back to Clarke's place. Playing chiefly a defensive game, they succeeded for a long time in retaining a slender lead established in the first quarter of an hour by Cahill. Then, nearly half an hour after the interval Cork got a penalty, despite protests, and it brought the equaliser, Madden scoring, and this was quickly followed by the winning goal by Fenton. Murtagh, in the Gate goal, was well covered by Noonan, who seemed able to check the entire Cork attack. He was the outstanding man of the game. O'Reilly was the Gate's best half, with Smyth and Rogers their most efficient forwards, after Cahill's transfer to the halves. It was in defence, however, that the visitors did their best work.

Cork United were far below recent form. O'Keeffe's injury necessitated several positional changes, and there was some further reshuffling during the game, without any striking effect. Fenton, who led the forwards, worked splendidly in his first big match this season, and Madden was very clever. Three lost opportunities early on helped to upset the attack. Desmond, making his debut at left half, was not too promising, and, indeed, the mid-field trio showed weakness. The backs took some time to settle down, but were not afterwards troubled.

DRAW AT DUNDALK

DUNDALK ........ 1 BRAY ........ 1

Dundalk could only draw with Bray Unknowns at Oriel Park. Donnelly scored from a penalty for Dundalk, and Mooney equalised for Bray, a score that about represented the merits of two moderate teams. Dundalk got scores of chances, but their forwards were inept and their shooting so bad that the Bray goalkeeper was not troubled. Bray, who looked a beaten team when Dundalk got their penalty goal in ten minutes, rallied in the second half, and, though they got few shooting opportunities, they were more dangerous than Dundalk.

WORTHY WINNERS

DRUMCONDRA 1 SHELBOURNE 2

Shelbourne were worth their win over Drumcondra at Tolka Park, but had the other home forwards showed the same enterprise in attack as Dyer (inside left), the result might have easily gone the other way. Shelbourne's defence was brilliant. Daly was sound in goal, and he was covered by two excellent full-backs in O'Rourke and Byrne, who not alone stopped Drumcondra's attacks in good style, but, by judicious placing, repeatedly turned the game in favour of the visitors, for whom Halpin, at centre forward, Kennedy and Cassidy were prominent in attack.

It was rather against the run of play when Ward netted for Drumcondra in ten minutes after McNamara had headed a centre by Dyer against the cross-bar. Six minutes later Kealy cleverly placed the ball outside Flynn's reach for the equaliser, and two minutes before the interval Kennedy, from the touch line, placed the ball splendidly for Halpin to head the deciding goal. In the second half Drumcondra improved, but could make little impression on Shelbourne's very sound defence.

LIMERICK UNLUCKY

SHAMROCK ROVERS 5 LIMERICK 2

An injury to J. Hartery five minutes after the start wrecked Limerick's chances against Shamrock Rovers at Milltown yesterday. He was forced to retire after twenty minutes, and Rovers won just as they pleased. At one stage of the game Limerick were two men short—Walsh, their centre-forward, retiring for part of the second half with an ankle injury.

Coad gave Rovers a 1-nil lead at the interval. Farrell, Lanigan and Westby scored for Rovers in the second half, before Walsh scored for Limerick. Gregg finished Rovers' scoring, and Healy got Limerick's second goal near the end.

BOHEMIANS... 1 BRIDEVILLE... 2

At Dalymount Park on Saturday Brideville completely shattered Bohemians' prospects of winning the League of Ireland Shield for the seventh time. For much the greater part of the game the home forwards were sweeping through their opponents' half-back line, but the requisite snap was not there. Webster quite easily dealt with the long shots sent to him haphazardly, and Keegan, O'Brien, and Shields greatly added to the discomfort of Bohemians' supporters.

One down at half-time, a really fine goal being scored by Byrne, the Brideville centre-forward after thirty minutes, did not seem too heavy a handicap for the home team in the second [illegible]. For the ensuing fifteen minutes Brideville were on the defensive, but there was nothing doing in the goal-getting line. Then Horlacher took Glennon's place at left-full, sending the back to inside-left, Morris to the left wing, and Greene to left half, but with thirteen minutes to go Glennon shot wide of Webster with a penalty kick. A few minutes later Dunne scored for Bohemians, but one minute from the end Byrne got another for Brideville.

Gold Cup.—Linfield 3, Belfast Celtic 3; Distillery 1, Cliftonville 0; Derry City 4, Glentoran 2.

U.C.D. Defeat Trinity

U.C.D. ........ 11 DUBLIN UNIV. 6

SHOWING a vast improvement on their previous form this season, University College were good winners over Dublin University by a goal, a penalty goal and a try (11 points) to a penalty goal and a try (6 points) at Belfield. U.C.D. owed their success to the superiority of their forwards, who dominated the scrums, and gave few, if any, chances to the Trinity backs to develop attempts at concerted passing.

It was a keen match from start to finish, with plenty of hard tackling, and here, again, the winners were always a shade superior to Trinity. College's first score came when McElhinney intercepted a pass from Mitchell, and crossed for a try, to which O'Flanagan added the points. O'Connor was slow in attempting to kick ahead, and O'Flanagan seized the chance to get a try, which was not converted. This ended the first half scoring.

Early in the second half O'Flanagan landed a penalty goal, following which a grand passing move by Trinity culminated in Mitchell crossing for an unconverted try, and in a keen finish, in which Trinity were pressing ahead, Barnes kicked a penalty goal.

Hingerty, Murray and Lawler were the pick of the winners' forwards, while of the Trinity eight, Skuce, Moynan and Barnes were prominent. McElhinney and O'Flanagan were U.C.D.'s best backs, while S. Walsh, with few chances, was the pick of Trinity's back division.

QUINNS IN FORM

OLD BELVEDERE 17 MONKSTOWN 6

The match at Sydney parade last Saturday was of a scrambling order, but the better side won by two goals, a dropped goal and a try to two tries. The first half was evenly contested, Campbell and Aherne scoring for Monkstown and McNellis for Belvedere. In the second half the brilliant play of Kevin and Gerry Quinn sealed Monkstown's hopes. Picking up in the home team's territory Kevin Quinn went off in a characteristic corkscrew run, left the defence standing and grounded behind the posts. Aird added the points. Byrne then got over, and Aird again converted. Towards the end, while Belvedere were maintaining their pressure, Kevin Quinn dropped a goal.

DASHING FORWARDS

BECTIVE ...... 14 WANDERERS 3

Bective's win over Wanderers at Lansdowne road by a goal and 3 tries to a try was due more to the greater dash of their forwards and opportunism rather than to anything approaching first-class Rugby. Wanderers were without L. Horan and W. McManaway, but had J. D. O'Connor been in the Bective side Wanderers' troubles probably would have been greatly increased.

Apart from some rousing rushes by the Bective forwards, the game had no redeeming features. D. O'Driscoll was nippy and enterprising at scrum-half, and K. Doyle and J. O'Rourke were sound centres. J. Guiney, a forward who was very prominent a few years ago, did great work as a wing forward, being always on the ball and being tireless. K. O'Brien, J. O'Kelly and J. Doyle were also noticeable. There was no cohesion or thrust at all amongst the Wanderers' backs, and the forwards were much below their best form.

J. O'Kelly and B. O'Brien got tries for Bective in the first half, and D. Flanagan and J. Doyle crossed in the second, Flanagan converting the last one. Graves got Wanderers' try close on time.

SOLDIERS' PROMISE

OLD WESLEY 13 CURRAGH COM. 0

The newly promoted Leinster Senior team, Curragh Command, made their first appearance in Dublin Rugby against Old Wesley, one of our most reliable teams, at Donnybrook, on Saturday. They were beaten by 2 goals and 1 try to nothing, but the difference between the sides was by no means so great as this score might suggest. More than half-way through the first half J. K. White, a useful Old Wesley three-quarter, got over for a try, to which E. A. Carry added goal points. Midway through the second period J. McConnell added an unconverted try, and before the end E. R. Doyle got a try, Carry again landing a goal.

The Curragh pack was a fine heavy one, with plenty of life and the backs were fast improving their combination as the game advanced. They will be a fine addition to Dublin Senior Rugby football, and have the ability to develop rapidly with opportunity.

SOUND DEFENCES

ST. MARY'S .. 0 MALONE ........ 0

Such a negative result gives a misleading impression of a really good game at Kimmage Grove. Superb defence work on both sides, rather than any inability to open up the game, was responsible for the blank score sheet. The tackling all round was hard and crisp, repeatedly breaking up back movements that were featured by strong running.

Pick of Malone's backs were S. G. McComb (scrum-half), W. McCartney (centre), and T. E. Monroe (full-back), while in a good pack H. Phair (the old Palmerston forward), J. Nelson, and J. Smyth were best. W. Meany, S. Mulvey, and W. Meehan were most prominent of the St. Mary's forwards. A. Norton gave a faultless display at full-back, and best of the other backs were T. Coveney (at out-half) and T. Bergin and S. O'Beirne.

LANSDOWNE BEATEN

NORTH ........ 14 LANSDOWNE ... 3

Lansdowne, the first Dublin team to visit Belfast this season, were unable to travel at full strength, and they had to play P. J. Horan at out-half against the North of Ireland. The North forwards had more of the ball, and Harrison and Jinkins were always a source of trouble to the Lansdowne defence. R. Quinn (Old Belvedere) turned out at scrum-half for North for the first time, and his general play was good, though Greer had to take some awkward passes. Greer dropped two goals for North, and Jinkins and Harrison scored tries. Horan kicked a penalty goal for Lansdowne.

'ROCK PACK DO WELL

BLACKROCK...... 8 PALMERSTON 0

Palmerston suffered their second defeat of the season when, at Williamstown, Blackrock College beat them by a goal and a try to nil. Palmerston were without Redmond, Little and West, and Gill, one of their best forwards, played as full-back, in which position he did very well.

Blackrock forwards gave their best display of the season, using their weight to effect, thus giving the backs many opportunities. In the first half O'Brien scored for Blackrock, Ryan failing with the kick, and Hoffman added another try, which Keenan converted.

NO DECISION BY LEAGUE

AFTER a discussion extending over three hours, the proceedings at yesterday's special general meeting of the League of Ireland, called for the purpose of considering the effects of the restrictions on travel imposed on the clubs by the Government Order, ended in a stalemate. The decision come to was that the meeting be adjourned to next Thursday at 7 o'clock to consider the question of the continuance of the league as at present constituted, and, if necessary, to move a resolution or resolutions.

The League of Ireland clubs had been circularised in accordance with a resolution of the management committee in order to obtain their views on the position. Dundalk, it was announced, had deferred their final decision. The Limerick delegates—Messrs. T. Catling and W. Pennington—stated they would be able to carry on only with financial assistance, and Mr. McDonnell (Bray Unknowns) informed the chairman (Mr. J. Auinger) that his club could not come to a definite decision until the shareholders had been consulted.

Various proposals were put forward, one being to the effect that the league as constituted be suspended and a new league formed; but Mr. Hunter (Drumcondra) raised the question of the legal standing of all the clubs who had been accepted as members of the league.

Mr. A. Byrne (Shamrock Rovers) thought that if Limerick and Bray Unknowns retired they could re-form the league, giving the two clubs the right to return when the emergency ended.

To that proposal Mr. E. Ryan, solicitor (Bray Unknowns) objected, on the ground that the agenda for the meeting did not provide for the taking of such a decision, and that it was out of order.

After a statement by Mr. J. Brennan (secretary) the chairman ruled that to accept any of the proposals suggested would be dangerous to the safety of the league, and the resolution set out above was agreed to, the clubs in the meantime to consider the position in all its possible bearings on the league.

The Chairman announced at the opening of the meeting that the Finance Committees of the Association and the League had met to consider the situation, and were very loath to subsidise any club.

PORTRANE MAINTAIN HOCKEY FORM

The Leinster Senior League continues to supply a weekly surprise; on Saturday it was the turn of Y.M.C.A., who, with a moderate record previously, beat Pembroke Wanderers 3-nil. This result, combined with Portrane's win over Three Rock Rovers and St. James's Gate's draw with Dublin University, puts the two former junior teams on top, Portrane being now two points in front of the Gate.

A burst of scoring in the first half gave Y.M.C.A. their unexpected success. W. Fry, C. Colter and C. D. Colter got the goals in quick succession, and in the second half Y.M.C.A., although hard pressed at times, hung on to their lead, Worrall playing one of his best games.

Portrane's victory was the result of a splendid match at Londonbridge road. The pace was tremendous, and Rovers very nearly saved a point, for they were right on the attack towards the end, but could not get past a steady defence. Griffin gave Portrane the lead, and Dagg equalised before half-time. In the second period Yourell got the decider in most brilliant fashion, sweeping through the defence to score from a difficult angle.

Although they held the lead until a couple of minutes from the end, St. James's Gate were rather fortunate in their goals against Trinity at Crumlin; but, considering the fact that their fine goalkeeper Parkinson, was injured early on, they possibly deserved a draw. O. Lush got the only goal of the first half, and Trinity still held the lead until midway through the second period, when Murphy and Moore netted for the Gate. Just on time Lush got the equaliser.

A penalty bully against their new goalkeeper—G. Ledwidge being no longer available—put Corinthians a goal down to Railway Union a minute after the start at Templeogue, Leopold converting it. After that Corinthians defended stoutly, but they seldom looked like scoring, and Power got a second goal for Railway in the second half. Results:—

Portrane 2, Three Rock Rovers 1; Y.M.C.A. 3, Pembroke Wanderers 0; St. James's Gate 2, Dublin Univ. 2; Railway Union 2, Corinthians 0.

CHRISTIE MAKES FINE RECOVERY

Although it was over in less than three rounds, the fight between T. Christie and N. Inche, former Lancashire schoolboy champion, provided the excitement at the Stadium on Saturday night, when the Jewish Club held their tournament. The hitting was exceptionally hard for bantam-weights, and Christie was nearly out in the first round to a succession of right swings. Having just weathered the storm, however, Christie proceeded to hammer his opponent all over the ring, and it was after a succession of punches that the plucky Inche was counted out in the third round.

A bantam and a light-weight cannot be expected to make an even contest, and, giving away a lot of weight, W. Falloon was no match at all for P. Dowdall, who took things easily for a points win in an uninteresting bout. The best of the other fights was the Collins-O'Sullivan affair, the former juvenile champion having all he could do to master a strong body-puncher. Results:—

Fly-weight—J. Collins (Avona) beat E. O'Sullivan (Griffith) on points.
Bantam—T. Christie (Arbour Hill) k.o. Inche (Lancashire) 3rd round; C. Caffrey (Corinthians) beat T. Thompson (St. Andrew's) on points.
Feather—T. Doyle (Sandymount) beat L. Woolfson (Jewish) on points.
Light—Cpl. P. Dowdall (Islandbridge) beat W. Falloon (Wales) on points.
Welter—T. Foran (St. Andrew's) beat Cpl. V. Black (Baldonnel) on points.
Juvenile—5st.—J. Landau (Jewish) beat J. Larkin (Tramway). 7-7—H. Isaacson (Jewish) beat P. Maguire (Terenure).

The Curragh Command boxing tournament will be held in the big gymnasium to-morrow, commencing at 7.0.

GRANGE CAPTAIN'S ADVICE TO GOLFERS

Dr. Robert E. Davitt (captain), Mr. Pierce Purcell (Portmarnock) and other speakers at the Grange dinner on Saturday night, in view of the acute shortage of golf 'balls, stressed the importance to golf clubs generally of developing the social side of the game. Dr. Davitt, proposing the toast of the Golfing Union of Ireland, said that he thought that the Chairman of the Leinster Branch (Dr. Sherlock) was unduly pessimistic at the annual general meeting. "Hold on to any old golf balls you have; with any kind of a ball you can play round the course," he said. So far as they at Grange were concerned, they would be perfectly safe by continuing to keep the club going in the social and sporting sense so long as it would be humanly possible to do so. He outlined a series of social functions arranged by the committee, complimented the Leinster Branch on its activities, extended their sincere sympathy with the Ulster Branch, which, for obvious reasons, was not functioning as usual, and to the Munster and Connaught Branches, which were up against severe transport difficulties.

The Lord Mayor, in presenting the prizes, said he was pleased to know that St. James's Gate Club had created a record in winning all four junior trophies, as he had been an employé of that firm for a number of years. Reference was made by Alderman A. Byrne, T.D., to the splendid services rendered to the sport of bowls by Mr. Henry J. Staff, Mr. E. Shott and Mr. John McGivern.

SPECULATIVE BUYING OF LOCAL SHARES

MARKETS were quieter in Dublin last week, but the tone was as cheerful as ever, and some strong industrial features developed. In addition to looking for a fair return for their money, investors seem prepared to buy shares with speculative attractions with a view to capital appreciation. Thus, we find shares that have been neglected for many years jumping into the limelight. Although the advance in prices has been rapid in many cases, there appears no sign of a halt in the upward movement. It is remarkable how interest moves from one section to another

Draperies are now claiming a lot of attention, and the market is buyers for choice. For many years the majority of these concerns had a pretty lean time, but now conditions are improved, and the general opinion is that they are doing well. In many cases shares were standing at very low levels, and consequently held scope for recovery when trade conditions improved. Pim Bros. Preference, which are of £5 denominations, spurted sharply to 35/-. The dividend on them is in arrears since 1931, but the report, which is due in January next, is awaited with interest.

E. and J. Burke issues are still in the limelight, and fresh support put prices still higher. As a speculative lock-up the Preference shares at the present price of 8/1½ look the more attractive of the company's issues, apart, of course, from the Debentures. Irish Cinema issues are more or less neglected, for in some quarters the hopes of an Ordinary dividend are not so pronounced. The Preference, which have always secured their dividend, do not look overvalued at 17/-, for the company is known to be doing well.

Leading Irish Industrials are quieter, but steady. They have had good rises, and the present lull is only natural. Any small profit-taking sales are quickly absorbed. Intending investors are inclined to hold their hand, as they do not feel like entering the market on top of such rises.

Many company reports are due at the end of the year, and it is more than likely we will see renewed activity in the securities concerned during the closing months. Clondalkin Paper Ord., for instance have slipped into the background, but it is known that the company is enjoying excellent trading conditions. In some quarters the optimistic view is taken that an Ordinary dividend of 10 per cent. will be paid. If this should prove correct, the shares certainly look cheap at 6/9

Pye (Ireland) Ordinary are buyers at 5/-. This company continues to do well, and its trading year ends on the 31st December. It has had a steady earning capacity since its formation, and for the past two years a dividend of 7½ per cent. was paid. At the present price they should well pay for their keep, in addition to giving a good return for money invested.

Although Rails are quieter, the tone is cheerful, and prices look like going higher. Great Southern issues were prominent, and the Guaranteed was raised to 52½. Some people are hoping that one year's arrears of dividend, together with the dividend for the current year, will be paid this time.

If one is looking for a speculation, Great Northern Preference at 49¾ looks attractive. There seems little doubt but holders of this stock will receive a full 4 per cent. for the current year, which means that they will be getting a return of £8 0/10 on their money. Such a yield is difficult to obtain these days from a holding of this class. Furthermore, they hold scope for capital appreciation.

ARGENTINE RAILS FALL SHARPLY

BY OUR FINANCIAL CORRESPONDENT

LAST week's feature on the London Stock Exchange was the severe decline in Argentine Railway securities. These had been steadily rising on purchases induced by the improving traffic receipts of the companies and the more prosperous conditions in Argentina, but the contents of the Central Argentine Company's report came as a shock, as the accounts showed that increased gross revenue in the year to June 30 last had been more than offset by rising costs and heavy exchange losses, resulting in reduced net revenue.

The consequence was a rush to take profits, and dealers marked down prices sharply. But, even after this set-back, current prices still represent a considerable recovery from the lowest of this year. Thus Central Argentine 4 p.c. Deb. was quoted on Friday at 40¼, against 48 on Wednesday, before the report was published. The lowest of this year was about 30, and at one time in 1941 it was down to 19½. To a large extent purchases of most of Argentine Rail stocks must still be considered speculative.

Home Rails, which had been sold during the week, made some recovery on Friday. The general trend in Home Industrials remained upward, selective buying for current yield or post-war recovery having led to higher prices for various Brewery, Textile, Iron, Coal and Steel and Store issues, while more attention has been given to companies connected with the building industry.

There was again not much support for British Funds, the moderate buying being mainly directed to the short-dated securities, but Australian stocks received more attention.

Whenever the more speculative sections of the Stock Exchange become subdued and financial resources tend towards strictly investment channels the market for Electric Equipment shares usually gains prominence. That is the case at present. There is good support for such issues as Callenders Cable, British Insulated Cables, W. T. Henleys Telegraphs, and Enfield Cable Ord. units.

Such securities have for years occupied a place in the front rank of Industrial Equities favoured by investors, and their post-war prospects gives every cause for optimism. Revenue during the war period has been well maintained, and, in most instances, the excellent dividend records for the past year have been fully maintained. Callenders Ord. have moved up to 75/3, to return a shade under 4 p.c., on the 15 p.c. dividend regularly paid. British Insulated Ord., now 97/6, return about £4 2/6 p.c. on the 20 p.c. distributions of past years. Such yields may be small, but investors are satisfied, largely because of the strong position of the concerns and their future possibilities.

Diamond shares have been a good market recently. The industry is benefiting from two causes. As gems, diamonds are being bought as portable property which is unlikely to decrease in value, and will stand in good stead should inflation or some other influence affect normal values. On the other hand, industrial stones are in considerable demand for industry, and the supply is declared to be substantially less than the demand. From both points of view, of course, the industry is closely controlled by agreement, but it is being suggested that, particularly from the point of view of industrial stones, a revision of the agreement allowing a greater output is in prospect.

This will affect the position of Consolidated Diamonds of South-West Africa, which specialises in industrial stones, and would, on such a revision, receive an increase in its quota. For this reason the company's 10/- Ord. shares have been strong at 15/-. De Beers is more concerned with the gem market, but its shares have also been in demand, and on Friday the £2 10/ Deferred closed at 10¼.

FOR BLOOD DONORS

Members of the Blood Transfusion Service may have identification discs of Army pattern. These discs will have the name on one side, and the blood group on the other. The possible issue of these discs forms part of the divisional blood transfusion scheme, a scheme which set out to atone for the large loss of membership in the National Blood Transfusion Service, the ranks of which were seriously depleted by migration and emigration. When the loss of membership became apparent it was decided that another drive for donors was necessary, but this time publicity on a large scale, which, in the past did not achieve satisfactory results, was not employed. Instead, the donors were recruited from the Red Cross divisions through the personal efforts of the officer personnel.

According to the current issue of the Irish Red Cross Monthly Bulletin, a 100 per cent. success is expected from this new attempt.

OIREACHTAS CONCERT

MODERATOR IN DUBLIN

If they were willing to give God the leading seat at the next Peace Conference, the world might be delivered from the nightmare of war, said the Right Rev. Dr. W. M. Kennedy, Moderator of the General Assembly of the Presbyterian Church in Ireland, who preached yesterday at the Anniversary Service at Donore Presbyterian Church. He pointed out that, while people were willing enough to let God reign at their prayer meetings and in their homes, they were not so willing to let Him reign at their political meetings. Dr. Kennedy preached again at the Evening Service.

Slow Progress

Fighting on the North African front continues so far without any spectacular results. Both sides realise to the full the importance of the campaign, which has been in progress now for a week, and there is no disposition by either to exaggerate its own achievements or to under-estimate those of its opponents. General Montgomery, who, under the command of General Alexander, is in immediate charge of the British offensive, manifestly has profited by the errors of his predecessors in the Western desert, and is moving forward with exemplary care. He knows that Marshal Rommel has not been idle during the last few months, and that a defence system has been organised in depth, the reduction of which will take a long time to accomplish. Hitherto desert warfare has been mainly a matter of tanks and armoured vehicles; but General Montgomery, remembering the lessons of "Knightsbridge," has adopted new—or rather old—tactics in his efforts to avoid Marshal Rommel's cleverly-constructed tank traps. Once again heavy artillery is coming into its own. The British are reported to be laying down a terrific artillery barrage, the primary object of which is to get rid of Marshal Rommel's mine-fields. This preliminary bombardment, which is reminiscent of the barrages of the last war in France, is followed by the advance of picked infantry units, whose task is to complete the destruction of the mine-fields, and consolidate the advanced positions that have been gained. General Montgomery's idea, apparently, is that, so soon as a sufficient number of "lanes" have been created through the mine-fields, the tanks and armoured vehicles will be brought into action. All the British reports lay emphasis on the strength of Marshal Rommel's anti-tank defences. They also stress the fact that the German troops that have been encountered, and some of whom have come from Greece, are veteran soldiers, and exceedingly "tough." Obviously, there can be no question this time of an easy or a rapid victory. Messages from Cairo state that the advancing British are meeting with "stiff opposition," that Marshal Rommel has launched as many as four counter-attacks in a single day, that the German defences are "extremely strong," and that the job of reducing them is likely to be "fairly long." Reports from Berlin and Rome are equally modest. The Germans claim that not only have the British not broken through their defences, but they have not even reached Marshal Rommel's main positions yet. They admit, on the other hand, that General Montgomery has managed to create "local gaps" at some points, and that the British attacks are being pursued "in a determined manner." According to the Italian reports, there never has been such an army in North Africa as that which the British have been able to build up since the retreat to the El Alamein line. Rome also declares that the Royal Air Force never has given such proof of its numerical strength and its efficiency. The entire absence of bombast from the official reports of the opposing forces in the Western desert suggests that British, Germans and Italians alike are playing, as it were, for safety. So far the battle is only in its preliminary stages. The British have undoubted superiority in the air, and are using it mainly in an effort to cripple Marshal Rommel's sources of supply. They also probably have numerical superiority on land, although the reported presence of German troops from Greece indicates that the Afrikakorps has been reinforced substantially. When the real issue is joined, much, if not, indeed, everything, will depend on the relative strengths of the rival tank divisions. The Germans claim already to have destroyed 345 British tanks; but, according to a report from Rome, General Montgomery has so many tanks and armoured vehicles at his disposal that he can afford to sustain heavy losses in his efforts to smash his way through Marshal Rommel's defences.

Britain's Fuel

In London last Saturday nearly 3,000 representatives of the coal-mining industry — miners, managers and owners—attended a conference at which the Prime Minister told them exactly what he wanted them to do. Every pit in Great Britain is said to have been represented. The meeting was not "public," and only a bald statement has been issued officially; but there can be little doubt about the general tendency of Mr. Churchill's exhortation. It is only within the last six months that Great Britain has become alive to the seriousness of the fuel situation—of which, incidentally, this country has been a victim. She awoke almost overnight to the fact that her production of coal was not keeping pace with her consumption of it, and that grave inroads were being made upon her stocks in reserve. Coal is the mainstay of Britain's war industries, and an enormously larger demand is being made upon it than was made in time of peace; it is, in addition, her only source of electrical power, and, despite the progress of oil-burning vessels, it still is needed for the fuelling of the great majority of her warships and merchant ships. The drain upon her supplies was too formidable to be overlooked, for not merely had consumption increased, but production had declined. For a time it looked as if drastic rationing would be the only solution, and the Government went so far as to propound a scheme which would place coal, gas and electricity on the private consumer's ration book, in order that the industries might be kept running at full blast. The proposal was dropped. Although it had the support of official Labour, it was opposed by a strong body of Conservative members of Parliament, for reasons which never have been made entirely clear; and nothing happened—except that supplies continued to dwindle—until a month ago, when the Government initiated a "campaign" on behalf of voluntary economy. This campaign evidently has had a high degree of success.

Many people, however, refuse to believe that voluntary saving can satisfy the national need, and fear that the shortage will be more, instead of less, serious before the winter is out. They argue that only rationing will save the situation—coupled with an energetic attempt to get more coal out of the mines. These people think that the Government has made a wrong estimate of the comparative value of soldiers and miners: it has drafted into the armed forces many thousands of young, strong, skilled miners, and has left only the middle-aged and less productive men for the vital task of digging coal. There has been a more inister allegation—that certain owners, contemplating an industrial "boom" after the war, with a lucrative demand for coal, are reserving their best seams against that time—but such lack of patriotism and of common-sense is almost incredible. We may be certain that Mr. Churchill—who was accompanied by Field-Marshal Smuts—discussed these various matters with the mining representatives. It remains to be seen whether his exhortation will have the desirable effect, or whether stronger measures will be needed as the war effort rises to its peak.

The Lure of Learning

Apart from a few fortunate individuals whose callings require that they should continue in the paths of study and research from the time they leave school or university till they die—for retirement in such cases seldom leads to any alteration in the habits developed through the greater part of a lifetime—most men of intelligence realise at some stage of their middle-age that they have wasted a great deal of precious time which might have been given to the acquisition of knowledge. There is a sudden consciousness of their appalling state of ignorance, and, while the mood lasts, there is regret that so many evenings were spent in pursuits that, while innocent enough in themselves, produced no dividend in the shape of useful information. The majority, upon reflection, may decide that the best will have to be made of what remains of their collegiate education, but, if the consciousness is accompanied by conscientiousness, a belated effort may be made to repair the defects which have developed or which always were present. The study of a language or of some aspect of history, literature or science may be tackled with determination. Unfortunately, the brain which has long lost the habit of memorising anything more useful than the routine of its owner's business, or the names and styles of international footballers, usually is found to be incapable of retaining the matter which is now stuffed into it. The father who decides that he will keep step with one of his urchins who is taking a preliminary canter with the Franks, Germans or Latins, discovers that, while the child absorbs fresh knowledge like a sponge, he fails hopelessly to make substantial progress. He still is worrying about the difference between chevaux and cheveux when the young hopeful has got to the stage of backing the one in each-way doubles or is having the other set in a liberty "perm." The only way to preserve the facility for study is never to lose it or neglect it. Youth should be warned, just as sternly as it is warned against the other pitfalls of life, against the folly of abandoning the books as soon as school-days are left behind. In Dublin at present there are cheerful indications that those who most recently left school have no intention of finding all their mental recreation in the motion picture theatres or the pages of the latest "blood." The classes at the various technical institutes have bigger attendances than for many years past, knowledge of every kind, from shorthand and typewriting to cookery and dress-making, being in keen demand. The suggestion that the scarcity of fuel and of gaslight has driven pupils to the continuation schools as places where evenings may be spent in a useful sort of comfort probably comes from those who have found themselves mentally incapable of appreciating the fare that the schools have on offer.

THE Warden of St. Columba's College, the Rev. C. W. Sowby, M.A., who is in London at present, preached yesterday at Westminster Abbey.

Professor Julian Huxley was entertained to dinner on Saturday night last by Mr. Ralph Brereton Barry, K.C., and afterwards attended a party given by Mr. Erskine Childers, T.D., at his home in Highfield road, Rathgar. Professor Huxley left Dublin this morning for England.

Commander Stephen King-Hall, who spent a short holiday in Dublin, last week, has returned to London.

The Lord Mayor, Alderman P. S. Doyle, T.D., accompanied by the Lady Mayoress, presented the prizes to members of the Irish Bowling League at Jury's Hotel on Saturday night last.

Professor W. M. MacMillan, one of the principal speakers at the inaugural meeting of the Dublin University Philosophical Society, has returned to London.

Mr. and Mrs. Ryder have arrived in Dublin from Gloucester.

Mrs. Bagot will remain in Buenos Aires until after the war. Miss K. Bagot is in Dublin.

Mrs. W. J. Warner has returned to Galway from Dublin.

OPENING MEETINGS

FROM OUR CORRESPONDENT.

OPENING meetings continue to be the main item of interest in College news. The most important opening meeting to be held this week will undoubtedly be that of the College Historical Society. It will take place in the Dining Hall on Wednesday next, at 8.15 p.m. In addition to Mr. Vernon Bartlett, M.P., other speakers whose names have been recently announced include Dr. Ryan, the Minister for Agriculture. Dr. Ryan was a member of the Irish Delegation to the Economic Conference at Ottawa in 1932, and was one of the Delegation which completed the British-Irish negotiations in 1938. He is an unusual combination in public life, being a physician as well as a politician. Professor W. K. Hancock, Professor of History at Birmingham University, will also be among the speakers. From 1924-'33 he was Professor of Modern History at the University of Adelaide, being a quondam Fellow of All Souls', Oxford. He has written books on Australia, and is responsible for the Survey of the British Commonwealth Affairs, 1937-'40. Mr. John A. Costello, LL.B., K.C., T.D., will complete the distinguished list. He is a Bencher of King's Inns, and was Attorney-General of the Irish Free State from 1925-'32. He is well known as a vigorous speaker. Admission to this meeting will, of course, be by ticket only. The President of the College Historical Society is Dr. Douglas Hyde.

To-night the opening meeting of the College Theological Society will be held in the Dining Hall. The chair will be taken at 8.15 by the President, the Rev. Canon J. E. L. Oulton, D.D., and the Auditor, Mr. W. B. B. Magill, Sch., will read his inaugural address on "The Christian View of Man." Speakers will include the Very Rev. the Dean of Kildare, the Rev. Canon Marks, B.D.; Dr. W. B. Stanford, F.T.C.D., and the Rev. A. T. Hanson, B.D. The meeting will be open to the public (men only). It is interesting to note that the Rev. A. T. Hanson, one of the speakers, was a few years ago Auditor of the Society. The Theological Society is the second oldest in College.

To-night also the opening meeting of the D.U. Experimental Science Association will be held. It takes place at 7.45 in the Physical Laboratory. The President, Mr. A. E. Werner, M.A., M.Sc., Ph.D., will deliver his inaugural address on "Industrial Chemistry Under War Conditions." Professor R. A. Q. O'Meara, Sc.D., M.D., F.T.C.D., will be in the chair. Speakers will include Mr. T. S. Wheeler, D.Sc., Ph.D., etc., State Chemist; Mr. W. R. Fearon, M.A., M.B., etc., Professor of Biochemistry, and Mr. T. W. Freeman, M.A., Lecturer in Geography.

On Friday next, at 8 p.m. in the G.M.B., takes place the opening meeting of the D.U. History Society. An inaugural address to be read by the Auditor, Mr. F. G. C. Lewis-Crosby, will be entitled "Causes of War." Speakers will include Professor J. M. O'Sullivan, T.D.; Mr. O. de Selincourt, M.A., Q.U.B.; Senator Douglas and Professor J. Johnson, F.T.C.D., Senator. The chair will be taken by Dr. T. W. Moody, F.T.C.D. Feminists will doubtless rejoice that this is one of the few opening meetings of the college to which women are admitted. At the first ordinary meeting of the College Philosophical Society on Thursday next a paper will be read by Mr. D. R. Godfrey, Sch., entitled "Liberty, Equality and Fraternity in the Post-war World." Mr. Godfrey recently won the gold medal of the Society for oratory and the silver medal for prose.

NEW PUBLICATION

Dr. A. A. Luce is at the moment engaged on a new edition of Berkeley's "Commonplace Book." It is hoped that, conditions permitting, this work will be published before long. The "Commonplace Book" consists of two notebooks which Berkeley filled with philosophical notes in College shortly after his election to Fellowship in 1707. They form a preparatory study for his "New Theory of Vision and the Principles."

The first edition of "T.C.D." in the Michaelmas Term appeared last Thursday. The new editor, Mr. J. D. Llewellyn-Jones, is a medical student. Last June he edited the highly successful rag magazine, "Trinity Parade." He is an active member of the Dublin University Players. Many of the familiar items are retained in this term's "T.C.D.," including, of course, "Campanalia," the College Diary and "Little Known Poets." No startlingly original note in the actual content has as yet been struck, but the format has undergone a transformation as a result of the paper shortage. This week's editorial justifies this change as an alternative to publication with fewer pages and at an increased cost.

ILLNESS OF DR. COFFEY

The condition of Dr. D. J. Coffey, former President of University College, Dublin, who has been lying seriously ill for the past week in a Dublin nursing home, was described last night as being "much the same, and fairly satisfactory."

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

STANDARDS

TO THE EDITOR OF THE IRISH TIMES.

SIR,—In the controversy on the Minister's ban upon "The Laws of Life," by Dr. Halliday Sutherland, it is stated by Mr. Sean O Faolain, Mr. Dillon, and others, that this book had had, or has, the imprimatur of Cardinal Hinsley. The book, published in 1935, bears, however, neither the nihil obstat of the Diocesan Council of Censorship of Westminster, nor yet the imprimatur of His Eminence Cardinal Hinsley, Cardinal Archbishop of Westminster. Obviously it does not lie upon His Eminence to correct such misconceptions as have arisen in this controversy.

Dr. Halliday Sutherland in his book, "A Time to Keep," tells the story of that once famous libel action in which Marie Stopes was plaintiff and Dr. Halliday Sutherland was defendant, an action in which, after a trial lasting in various stages for two and a half years, Dr. Halliday Sutherland was successful. The book, "The Laws of Life," may be regarded as the aftermath of that action. It was written for an English-speaking public, where opinion is based upon imagined biological necessity. If in Ireland we prefer to face life as realists and without argument or qualification, why this fussiness of offence so taken?—Yours, etc.,

EDWARD J. LITTLE.

Cliftonville, Bray,
October 30th, 1942.

TO THE EDITOR OF THE IRISH TIMES.

SIR,—Your correspondent, Mr. G. Lalor, had to bring his letter in your issue of to-day to a hasty conclusion owing to an attack of stomach trouble caused, I gather, by indignation.

This painful malady of cholerogastritis is, I fear, spreading widely in our midst. I had a touch of it to-day myself. It was caused by the thought that, while such social evils as that pointed out by Mr. Lalor are rife amongst us, our intelligentsia are occupied in fussing over a banned book. I must stop . . .—Yours, etc.,

"MESELF."

Dublin, October 30th, 1942.

WOOD DRYING KILN

TO THE EDITOR OF THE IRISH TIMES.

SIR,—With reference to Mr. Hilton's letter in this morning's Irish Times, the point I stressed with your representative was that we had installed the first wood drying kiln in the manufacture of furniture in Dublin. I did not say that kiln drying was a new process, although I could have said that with the experience of years the process had been improved. Mr. Hilton's firm does not, as far as I know, claim to be cabinet-makers, in as much as they are not regular suppliers to the trade of bedroom suites, sideboards, dining tables, etc., which items are the big end of the industry.

Following your article a Dublin firm gave us an order for 250 walnut and oak bedroom suites, and the purchaser told us frankly that he could not obtain bedroom suites made from kiln dried native timber from any other furniture manufacturer in Dublin. No doubt, if Mr. Hilton's firm manufactured bedroom suites, they would have had an opportunity of quoting for this substantial order.

Not only are we furniture manufacturers in the accepted sense of the term, but we fell and manufacture our own timber, kiln dry it by the most modern process, and, in addition, manufacture our own plywood.—Yours, etc.,

PETER McCARTHY, Chairman,
O'Dea and Co., Ltd.

FILM NOTES

BY OUR CINEMA CORRESPONDENT.

Miss Annie Rooney (Metropole): "I must have been ridiculous at thirteen," says Shirley Temple in character as little Annie Rooney. I thought that she was at much earlier ages, but I find her much more tolerable on her return to the screen as a sub-deb. who has substituted a quieter charm for her earlier precocity.

The plot of this rather slight vehicle for her "come-back" tells how mechanically-minded Joey took little Annie to a hop in his puddle-buster but got tanking with a jerk in a jalopy. Annie switches and takes the jerk, a guy with two left feet, to the jam session. She strikes him as having more zingo than the drizzle-pusses he usually knocks about with, and they are soon in the groove cutting a rug together. He invites her to his fashionable uptown home, and it looks as if the Rooney family are really going somewhere. Complications in the person of the unrealistic Rooney père muss things up temporarily, but in the end Annie and her boy-friend (Dickie Moore) finish up cooking with gas.

All this, by the way, to prove to you that the dialogue of this pleasant little picture has not been translated from the original American "slanguage." So much so that, when after an interval of Shakespearean quotation, Shirley says: "I think he is so 'smooth,'" you will probably share her enthusiasm.

Beyond the Blue Horizon (Theatre Royal)—If the novelty of Shirley Temple's return to the screen means nothing to you, this is a film which, although wildly improbable, is easily the most entertaining in Dublin this week. Dorothy Lamour circulates through the jungle in an apparently adhesive sarong, squired by a new leading man, Richard Denning, who is much closer the Nordic conception than anybody I have seen on or off the screen. To make weight, there are the usual treacherous natives, a mad elephant, a new playmate for Dorothy in the shape of a magnificent tame tiger, and some natural comedians—Gogo, the chimpanzee, and a number of minor monkeys—which outdo the best efforts of Abbott and Costello. The whole thing is enhanced by particularly beautiful technicolour.

The Young Mr. Pitt (Savoy) was a disappointment to me in everything except the magnificent acting of Robert Donat in the part of the famous statesman. The acting generally is of the beautiful, restrained excellence one expects to find in the best British pictures—Robert Morley is second to Donat in his portrayal of Charles Fox, the man whose life was made hideous by bad cards and good women. But the picture, on the whole, is devoid of any human interest, and on that account is more than a little tedious.

Grand Central Murder (Adelphi). George Formby, they tell me, is good box office in Dublin. Usually when I have to attend one of his films I crawl under the seat and wait there until it is all over. I saw no reason to vary the procedure with "Much Too Shy," which is the main feature at this cinema this week. On the other hand, the supporting picture is a murder mystery, which has as its background, Grand Central Station, that busy hub of New York, which is good, because it brings you once again that fine actor, Van Heflin.

Honolulu Lu (Capitol)—Lupe Velez fans will find this film just what the doctor ordered. Although registering enough S.A. to captivate a battleshipful of U.S. marines, Lupe—strangely enough—gets into nary a clinch with male star, Bruce Bennett. "The Doctor's Alibi," a film which has a nice white horse, Charles Starrett, his girl friend, and a lot of very bad men, indeed.

Top Sergeant Mulligan (Carlton)—No slur is intended in saying that the real star of this film of U.S. Army "life" is a banana, peeled on the screen to the accompaniment of envious gasps from the audience. There are wisecracks a-plenty in this picture. Low marks to "The Night has Eyes," which has James Mason in the lead opposite a heroine, Joyce Howard, who is so colourless as to be scarcely discernible.

CRUISKEEN LAWN

By Myles Na gCopaleen

DO not for that singular interval, one moment, think that I have been overlooking this new Intoxicating Liquor Bill. I am arranging to have an amendment tabled because it appears that there is absolutely nothing else you can do with an amendment.

My idea is to have the hours altered so that public houses will be permitted to open only between two and five in the morning. This means that if you are a drinking man you'll have to be in earnest about it.

Picture the result. A rustle is heard in the warm dark bedroom that has been lulled for hours with gentle breathing. Two naked feet are tenderly lowered to the flower and a shaky hand starts foraging blindly for matches. Then there is a further sleepy noise as another person half-wakens and rolls round.

"John! What's the matter?"
"Nothing."
"But where are you going?"
"Out for a pint."
"But John! It's half two."
"Don't care what time it is."
"But it's pouring rain. You'll get your death of cold."
"I tell you I'm going out for a pint. Don't be trying to make a ridiculous scene. All over Dublin thousands of men are getting up just now. I haven't had a drink for twenty four hours."
"But John, there are four stouts in the scullery. Beside the oat-meal bag."
"Don't care what's in the scullery behind the oat-meal bag."
"O. John."

And then dirty theatrical snivelling sobbing begins as the piqued and perished pint-lover draws dressing gowns and coats over his shivering body and passes out gingerly to the stairs.

Then the scene in the pub. Visibility is poor because a large quantity of poisonous fog has been let in by somebody and is lying on the air like layers of brawn. Standing at the counter is a row of dishevelled and shivering customers, drawn of face, quaking with the cold. Into their unlaced shoes is draped, concertina-wise, pyjama in all its striped variety. Here and there you can discern the raw wind-whipped shanks of the inveterate night-shirt wearer. And the curate behind the bar has opened his face into so enormous a yawn that the tears can be heard dripping into the pint he is pulling. Not a word is heard, nothing but chilly savage silence. The sullen clock ticks on. Then "Time, please, time. Time for bed, gentlemen." And as you well know, by five in the morning, the heavy rain of two-thirty has managed to grow into a roaring downpour.

The Plain People of Ireland: Is all this serious?

Myself: Certainly it's serious, why wouldn't it be serious, you don't think I'd try to make jokes about anything so funny as the licensing laws, why would I bring turf to Newcastlewest?

The Plain People of Ireland: If you're serious so, it's only a trick to get more drink for newspapermen.

Myself: Nonsense. Newspaper men couldn't hold any more than they have at present.

The Plain People of Ireland: O faith now, that's enough. That's enough about that crowd. Remember well, many's a county council meeting, fluthery-eyed note-takers couldn't get the half of it, stuff that days was spent thinkin' out.

Myself: Hic!

The Plain People of Ireland: Faith indeed that was loud enough, well you may talk about putting down drink. Putting down is right.

Myself: Ut's only mey undajaschin, d'yeh ondherstawnd.

I can see even another domestic aspect of this new order. It is after midnight. The man of the house is crouched miserably over the dying fire.

"John! Look at the time! Are you not coming to bed?"
"No. I'm waiting for the pubs to open."

AMBULANCE AT WORK

The Field Ambulance Company of the Coastal District L.D.F. exercised in Malahide yesterday, in co-operation with the V.A.D. department of Howth and Malahide Red Cross. Operating under the most difficult conditions, they dealt with a dozen "casualties," ranging from simple "walking" cases to "victims" suffering from multiple injuries.

Advancing under cover of ditches, trees and bushes, the company found that the men they had been sent to bring back to the waiting ambulances were lying in the thickest undergrowth. One—a sniper—with severe head and leg injuries, lay across the bough of a tree, and all had to be bandaged where they lay before being placed on stretchers. The "sniper" was lowered from his precarious perch by means of L.D.F. belts strapped together, and he slid head-first into the up-lifted stretcher.

The exercises were carried out under the command of Dr. Harry Michael, Officer Commanding the Coastal District, L.D.F. Dr. P. B. Walsh, Mr. F. Mallen and Mr. George O'Donnell were in charge of the Red Cross workers.

DEGREES CONFERRED

At a meeting of the National University of Ireland for the purpose of conferring degrees and other academic distinctions, held on Saturday, Dr. A. W. Conway, M.A., D.Sc., President of University College, Dublin, and Pro-Vice-Chancellor of the University, presided and conferred degrees. There were also present: Professors Semple, O Cadlaigh, T. J. Nolan, O'Connor, Ryan, Shields, Drew, Purcell, Keating, Hackett, M. A. Hogan, Agnes O'Farrelly, Larchet, Lloyd Jones, J. J. Hogan, Tierney, O'Brien, Macken, Doyle, the Rev. Professors Corcoran, O'Keeffe, Dr. R. D. Edwards, Dr. L. Roche, Dr. S. O Searcaigh, Dr. E. Bannan, Mr. M. McDermott, B.Arch.; Dr. R. G. Allen, Mr. F. W. Warwick, B.E.; Dr. F. E. Lewis, Miss N. Greene, B.Sc.; Dr. Sheila Power, Mr. M. Hayes, M.A.; Mr. P. F. Donovan, M.A., Supervisor of Examinations; Professor J. J. Nolan, Registrar, and Mr. A. J. O'Connell, M.Comm., Secretary and Bursar.

TREATMENT OF EYE DISEASES

"There is a better public understanding in the treatment of squint," said Mr. L. E. J. Werner, M.D., D.O.M.S., new President of the Dublin University Biological Association, in his inaugural address to the society on Saturday on "Eye Symptoms in Some General Diseases." In former days, he continued, the chief difficulty with regard to squint had been in persuading parents to have their children treated. But nowadays the difficulty lay in providing accommodation for the numerous children presented for cure.

There is a great difficulty at present in obtaining the cheaper spectacle frames, and it is possible that, because of the scarcity of these frames, some children who would normally receive treatment will have to go without it, he said.

He appealed to those who had steel spectacle frames which they were no longer using to bring them to the nearest hospital for re-fitting and redistribution. Praising the work of the schools' medical inspection and of the child welfare centres, he said that these services resulted in the detection of eye defects at an early stage, and enabled them to be kept under obsrvation and given treatment.

Dr. G. C. Dockeray, outgoing President, was in the chair.

LONDON LETTER

59 FLEET STREET, LONDON,
SUNDAY NIGHT.

BIRMINGHAM yesterday won the Bledisloe Cup, awarded annually by the National Allotments Society to the local authority showing outstanding progress in the "Grow More Food" campaign. The donor is Viscount Bledisloe, formerly Parliamentary Secretary to the Ministry of Agriculture, and himself a prominent agriculturist, who has shown the keenest interest in the small man's efforts to become self-sufficient in vegetables. Birmingham has provided no fewer than 8,649 plots for new applicants during the past twelve months. The runner-up in the competition is the Middlesex Urban District of Yiewsley and West Drayton, while the Worcestershire Borough of Nuneaton is a good third. Middlesex leads the country in the number of its war-time allotments, and Yiewsley and West Drayton has set a splendid example with a record of one allotment to every two households, and well over two hundred woman allotment tenants.

Nutrition Expert

Sir John Orr, Britain's greatest expert on nutrition, has been appointed Principal and Director of Studies and Research of the North of Scotland Agricultural College. He is head of the Fowett Research Institute, near Aberdeen, and recently was appointed Professor of Agriculture at the University of Aberdeen, where the number of agricultural students enrolled for the current session is 31, including eight women, compared with 28 a year ago.

Christmas Trees

A ruling shortly will be given by the Ministry of War Transport as to whether there will be any Christmas trees for sale this year. All will depend on the precise meaning of the Order barring, after to-day, the transportation of flowers and decorative foliage. The Order exempts "hardy nursery stock," which are defined as "trees, shrubs and bushes complete with roots, which have persistent hardy stems." Nurserymen now want to know whether they may sell trees which, before they are planted, will be used for decorative purposes. Normally at Christmas they sell considerable quantities of conifers, which are used for decorative purposes and afterwards are planted out.

War-time Farming

The gratifying improvement in farming methods was mentioned by Mr. Tom Williams, M.P., Joint Parliamentary Secretary to the Ministry of Agriculture, at Peterborough, yesterday. A five per cent. increase in yields is equivalent to the ploughing up of a further half-million of acres, said Mr. Williams. Each farmer must apply the treatment best suited to his holding, and be ready to learn new methods.

Chequers

Before she returns to America, it is likely that Mrs. Roosevelt will pay a visit to Chequers Court, the place of rest and recreation for Britain's Prime Ministers. Chequers was presented to the nation in 1917 by Lord and Lady Lee of Fareham. The mansion long has been famous for its collection of Cromwell relics. Lord Baldwin spent most of his week-ends there. After the defeat of the first Labour Government in 1924, he spent the week-end receiving his letters of congratulation. One letter, carrying the fragrance and colour of a master's choice, struck him as the brightest blossom in all the ample bouquets; it came from a famous diplomat. Unfortunately, Sir Ronald Waterhouse, who had been Private Secretary to Lord Baldwin's two predecessors, recognised it, and later verified it, as a word for word copy of a letter sent by the same person to Mr. Ramsay Macdonald.

M.P.s Want to Know

Not for many months now have there been so many questions on the Order Paper at the House of Commons. There are hundreds of questions down every week, mostly for written reply, and it is estimated that it costs about £2 10s. apiece to answer them. The value of oral questions is that when the Minister has read his reply, which has been carefully prepared by the Department concerned, he is sometimes caught napping on the supplementary question. An example of a witty thrust in a supplementary is provided by an occasion in the late war, when Mr. Lloyd George was Minister of Munitions. Dr. Addison, his Parliamentary Secretary, was asked how many people were employed at the Ministry. He replied that the number was over three thousand. Mr. H. A. Watt, a Glasgow member, rose and asked innocently: "Can the honourable gentleman say what is now the population of Wales?"

AN IRISHMAN'S DIARY

The Coollattin Hunt

With the opening of the hunting season comes the news that the Coollattin pack is no more. Following upon the death of Mr. D. H. Doyne, who had been Master since 1908, the pack has been broken up, and in future the Coollattin country, or part of it, will be hunted by Mrs. Hall and the Carlow Foxhounds.

Before Mr. Doyne's spell as Master, Lord Fitzwilliam hunted the Coollattins for ten years, while his father and the late Mr. Robert Watson were earlier Masters.

Before that again, the country seems to have been included in the territory of the Island Foxhounds, which, at one stage, were joined with the Carlow Hunt, the two carrying on as one pack under the Mastership of the late Mr. Watson for the remarkably long spell of 49 years, not all of which, however, were spent with the joint-hunt.

An even longer spell of Mastership was enjoyed by Mr. John Watson, who was in charge of the Carlow Hunt (formerly known as the Tullow Hunt) from 1808 to 1869.

"Mr. Moto"

The editor of An Cosantoir has dug out an extremely interesting excerpt, apparently from a speech by the American, the Hon. John McCloy. He will forbear with me, I am sure, if I quote it here:—

"The Japanese soldier moves through the jungle in sneakers and shorts. He has simple equipment. There is just one size of hat for the entire Army; it has a draw string in the back so that it can be made to fit any head.

"His bag of rice, water filter, and tropical medicine pills are about the only other field equipment he carries besides his rifle and ammunition. He needs no soup kitchens to give him hot food as our troops have been used to, and with his light-weight ammunition he can act as a self-sustained fighting unit for days.

"The Japanese soldier is an aggressive, strong, wiry, ruthless fighter. He travels through forests and over any obstacle in the terrain at a pace which some would consider good over the flat. He thinks little of marching thirty-five miles for several days on end and then fighting at the end of it.

"Tree-men"

"When their troops come to a swamp or deep water they blow up their belts, which can be readily inflated, and they have a support in the water. They fold back specially built things that look like leggings, but can be made into water paddles, and the swamp or river becomes a highway rather than an obstacle.

"Another feature of their attack is the tree-men. They filter their way through the lines and then shoot men up the trees to fire into the backs of the opposing troops. They lash themselves into the trees, so that even if killed they will still draw fire.

"The individual soldier is well trained, fanatical in his conviction that death in battle puts him among the highly select. He combines this conviction with a hatred of the white man, but he does not waste himself in fanaticism or blind hate. His organisation is simple and his transport is excellent."

Long Life to Shoes

The raiding of cobblers' shops has brought the footwear shortage into the limelight. Our shoes will have to last longer.

The uppers will last indefinitely if treated in the right manner. Dubbin is the best preservative for both leather and stitching. It does take off the gloss, but this is only temporary. After a few days the dulness will brush off, and the shoes become softer and more comfortable.

Most of us have a few discarded pairs somewhere around the house. It is high time to rejuvenate them. They may not be good enough for the office, but they are good enough for our evening walks. Footwear needs a rest. The leather becomes "lifeless" from continuous use. Old spare pairs will serve that purpose.

They will also give our tired feet an evening's freedom.

When the gas supply is unsatisfactory or pressure low, our telephones are ringing continually, and our staff have a trying and difficult time. We would ask consumers to try and be patient, even though the circumstances are irritating. Well over one hundred thousand Dublin homes are served by gas, and it takes time for our service department to handle complaints in these most difficult days. To those consumers who so often refrained from telephoning, we say: "Thank you, very much."

INDUSTRIAL AND AGRICULTURAL PLANT:
Persons requiring petrol for industrial purposes—viz., for petrol-driven stationary engines, industrial and agricultural plant and machinery, etc., for use during the months of December, January and February next, should apply not later than the 16th November, 1942, on Form R.M.S.7A, obtainable at all Money Order Post Offices. Emergency Powers (Kerosene Rationing) No. 2 Order 1941

NOTICE TO RETAILERS AND DOMESTIC USERS OF KEROSENE

The Minister for Supplies announces that the issue of Paraffin Oil for domestic use during the month of November will be on the same basis as for the month of October. The MAXIMUM ration for issue by retailers to each registered customer during November will remain at one half-gallon. The Minister regrets that, owing to the heavy and sustained demands for kerosene for agricultural work, it has not been found possible to increase the ration for domestic use in November.

The Minister gives notice that supplies of kerosene for additional customers cannot be issued to kerosene retailers in respect of new applications for registration accepted by them after the 21st November, 1942. Retailers' returns of additional customers accepted by them up to that date must reach the Department of Supplies not later than the 30th November, 1942. Returns received after that date cannot be entertained.
